prologue: newark's renaissance

The June Class of 1958 is dedicating the theme of this Yearbook to the New Newark. Since the adoption of the new mayor-council form of municipal government in 1954, there has been a reawakening interest and hope among the citizens of Newark in the future prospects and potentialities of this city.

After twenty-five years of irresponsible neglect and exploitation of this city, the people became disillusioned in the fate and destiny of their city. A mass exodus from Newark to the suburbs ensued. Newark was a dead town . . . without a future . . . left to decay into a vast slum.

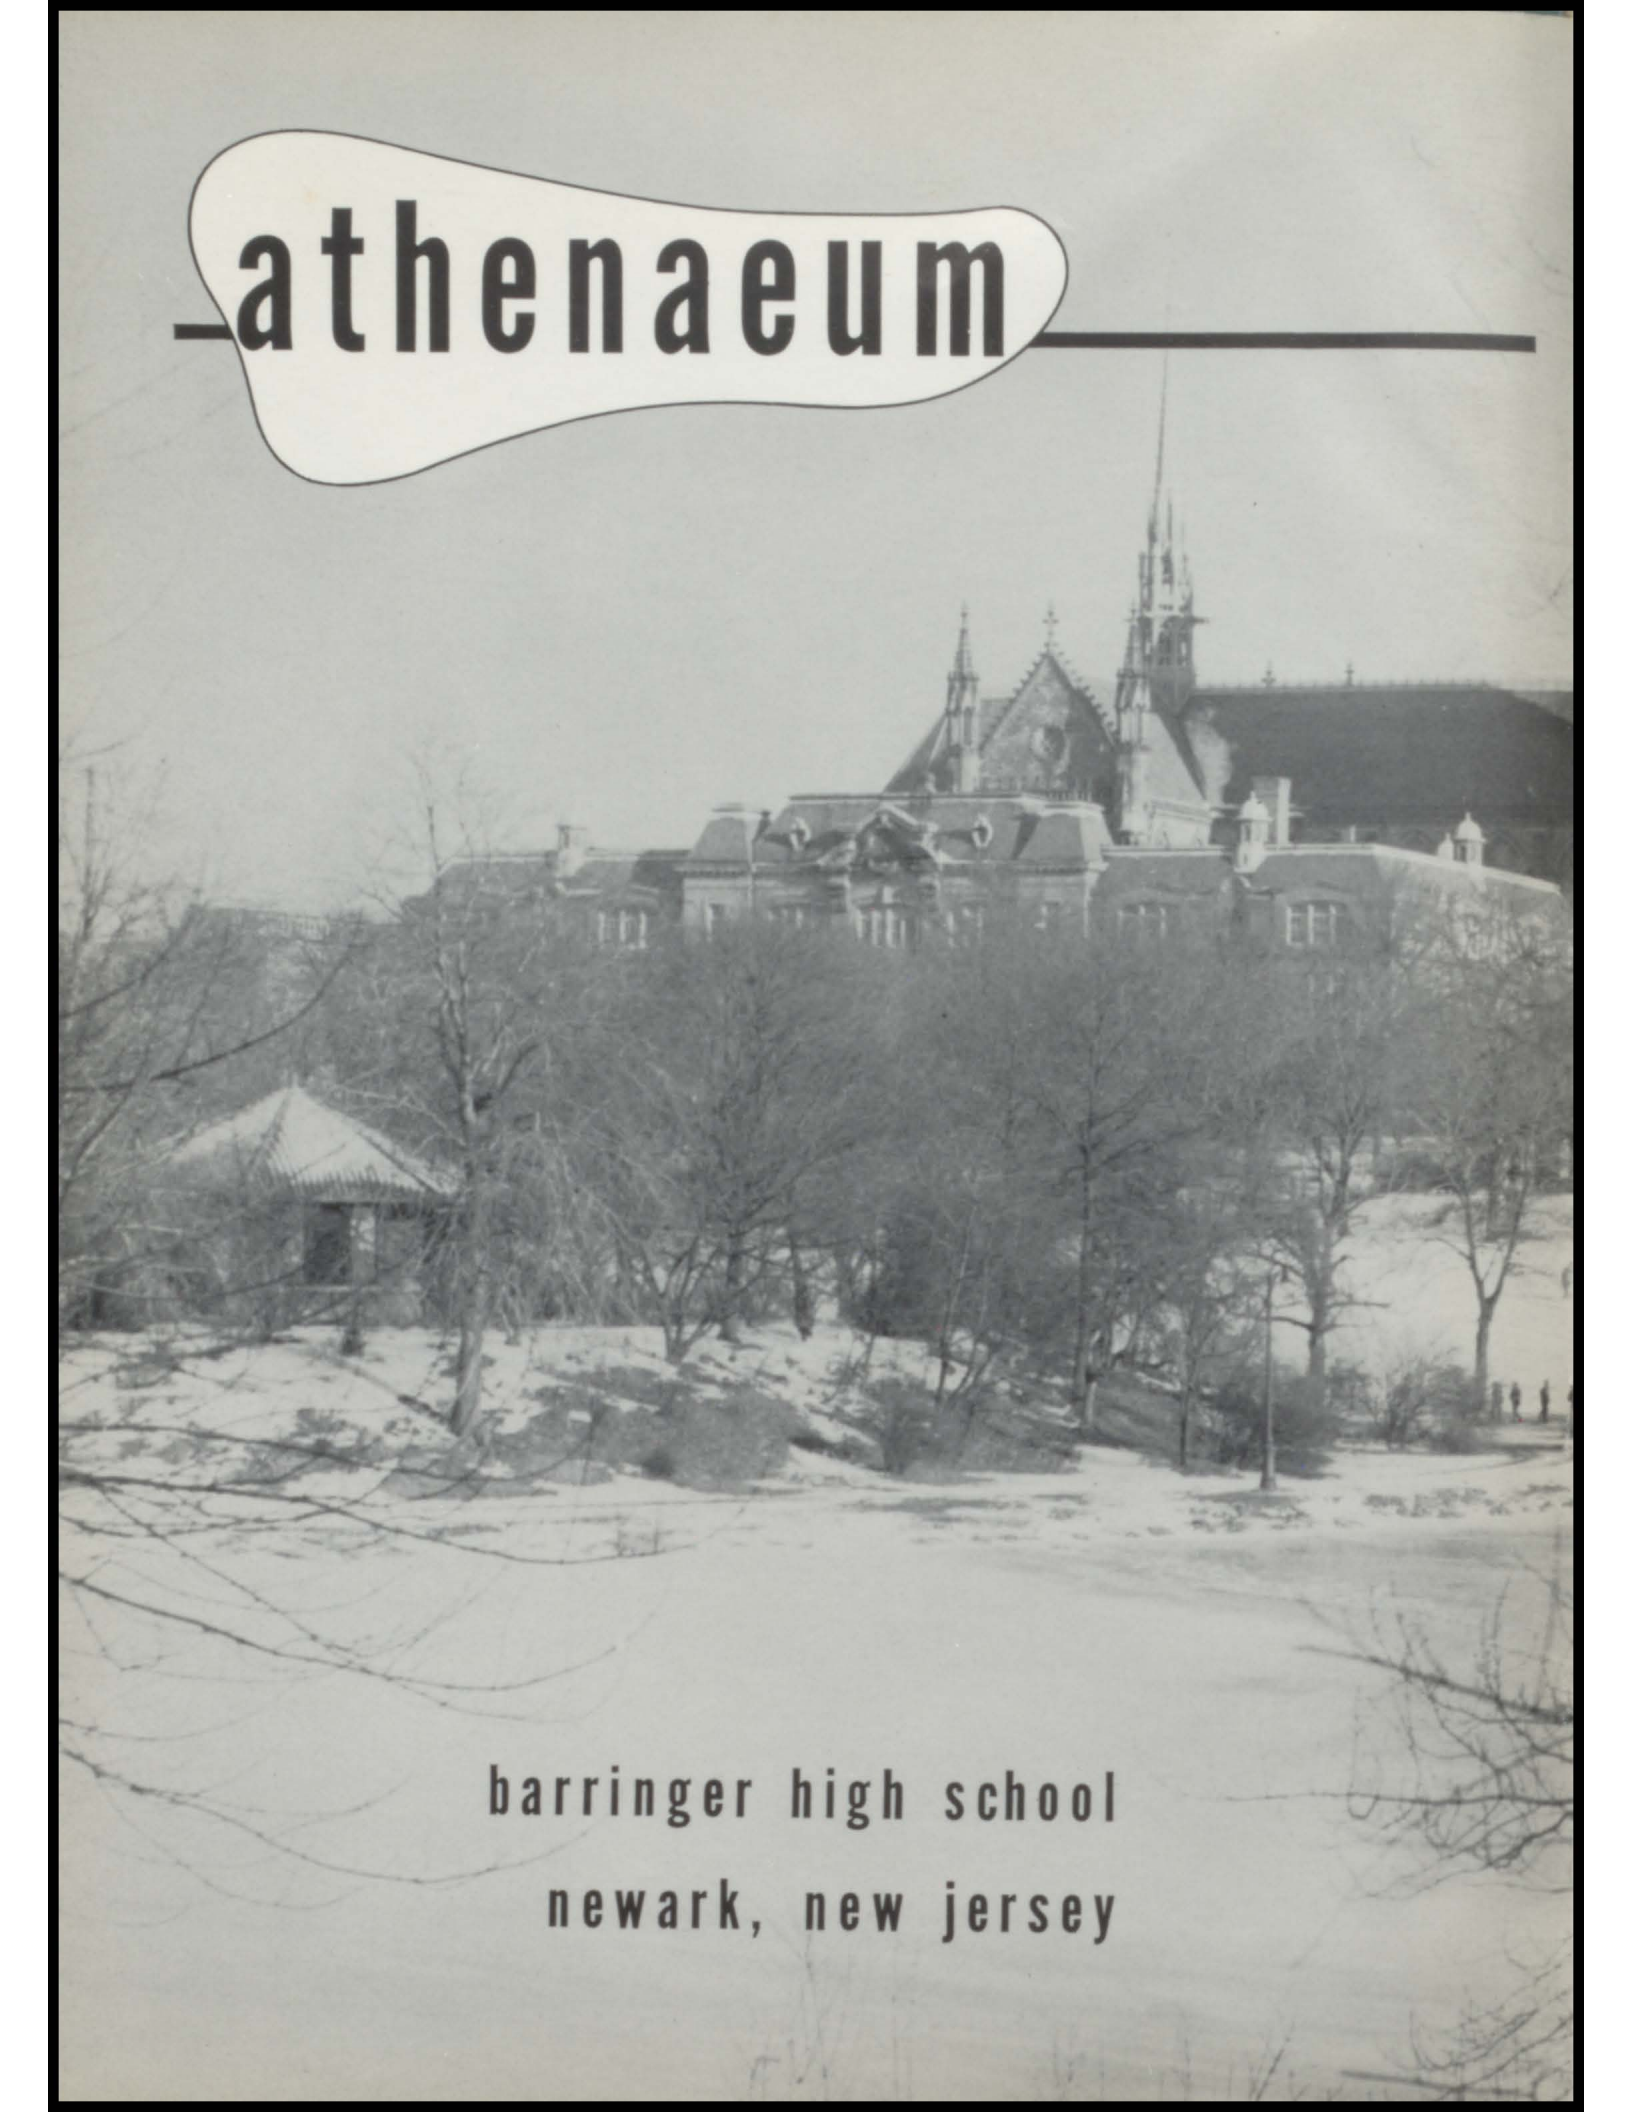

Since 1954, an admirable attempt has been made to rebuild the spiritual and physical aspects of the city. Much has been successfully accomplished to stem the tide of physical, social and economic deterioration. There is much yet to be done. This is the challenge of the future.

The New Newark must be made into a new city for all the people—residents, students, and business men alike. The city of Newark must hold a future and a promise for the youth of our town.

"You should have seen the one that got away."

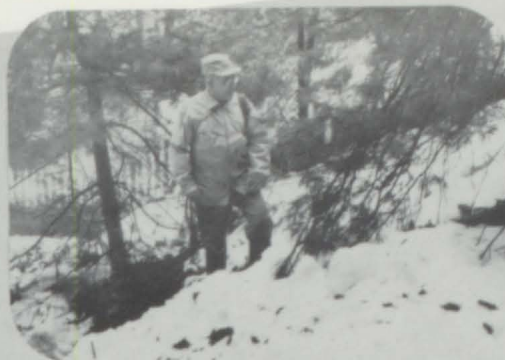

"I'm going through that do it yourself stage!"

Mr. Eisenberg . . .

"I have become a country squire."

"Outdoor life is for me!"

"This is for the birds . . . the food . . . that is!"

"Some of my best friends live here!"

"I get a kick out of restoring antiques."

"Goodbye Mr. Morrow . . . come again, Ed!"

person to person . . .

"he is a very perfect gentle knight"

"Good evening, Mr. Eisenberg. This is Edward R. Murrow in New York City. We are visiting you this evening because the senior class of Barringer High School has overwhelmingly voted to dedicate its year-book to you.

The citation reads that the class is according you this honor in recognition of your integrity as an educator and administrator, and your devotion to truth and learning. For years, you have worked unselfishly to make Barringer a school that enjoys an enviable reputation. As a teacher in the classroom, you have consistently aroused an enthusiasm for learning among your students. They are proud to be in your class!

Your steadfast, common sense philosophy with its emphasis on scholarship, self discipline, high moral standards, and academic achievement has been fully vindicated in the light of the post sputnik revelations on the short comings of American education. Those of us who realize that education is our salvation owe you a great debt of gratitude."

Mildred Caroline Greene

She loved this world

. . . And now, God has her back again—
This gentle soul who dared
To sense the sufferings of men
And live as though she cared.
And He will find, where all is known,
The scars of heartaches not her own.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT.

In English classes, in addition to stressing the four language skills of reading, writing, speaking, and listening, the human values in literature help the individual student understand his own problems as well as the dilemmas of others. Although such essentials as spelling, correct usage, punctuation, and formal grammar are of course of much importance, the major emphasis is upon clear and logical thinking and facility in communicating and receiving ideas. Since words are of prime importance in oral and written expression, vocabulary is stressed. In the modern world, language experiences are wide and varied: books, magazines, television, motion pictures, radio, newspapers, and comic books. The instruction in English has been expanded to include all these communication media as well as our personal use of language in writing, speaking, and thinking.

SOCIAL STUDIES DEPARTMENT.

the social studies

The student and the teacher of the social studies examine together the record of man's experience in his universe. They consider the circumstances of man's relations with his fellows in all the areas of human activity. History, which enables us to go back through time, is our best means of comprehending how we got where we are. The other social studies help us to understand how and why we act and are acted upon, to become aware of our environment and its influence, and to know the institutions which are the foundation stones of our civilization.

The dynamics of capitalism are reviewed in economics.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT.

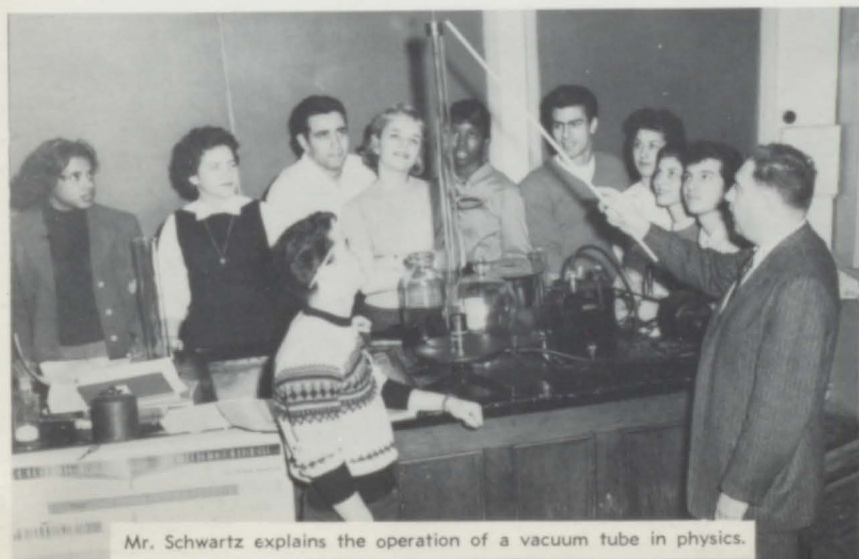

the science department

The Science department has a number of goals but first and foremost is the development of critical thinking. This is the basis of the methods of science and the means by which man can understand and control his environment.

Since it is not possible to think without facts, we must develop for the student a large body of information through which he can understand his environment, and therefore be better able to react to it properly.

Neither of the aforementioned goals can be achieved, unless there is the means by which the teacher can communicate to the student. Furthermore, the student must be able, adequately, to express himself and to make himself understood. To this end, it is the function of the department to develop precision in the use of language.

Our ultimate purpose is to develop individuals who can understand both the technical and social implications of science in a world that is becoming increasingly science-minded, and who are able to establish man in his proper place in such a world.

math department

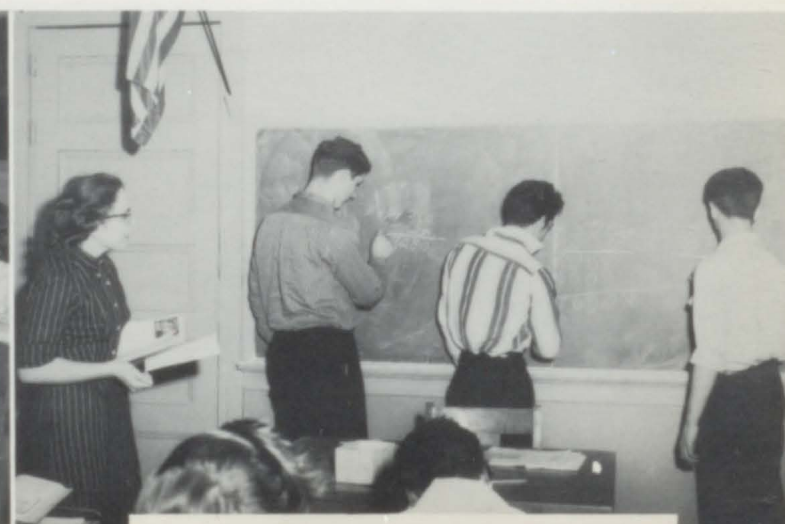

The Mathematics Department, aims to make available those experiences with mathematical concepts needed by Barringer students to insure their hopes and ambitions, limited only by their real interests and ability. This ranges from the student who aspires to do graduate in pure mathematics or engineering, to the student whose normal use of mathematics would be limited to those concepts needed to manage economical and efficient homes. The parallel programs are offered (14 terms) with appropriate aims, objectives and content. In addition, judgement transfer points are provided so that the student, with the aid of his counselor, may select those best fitted to his needs and abilities.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT.

language department

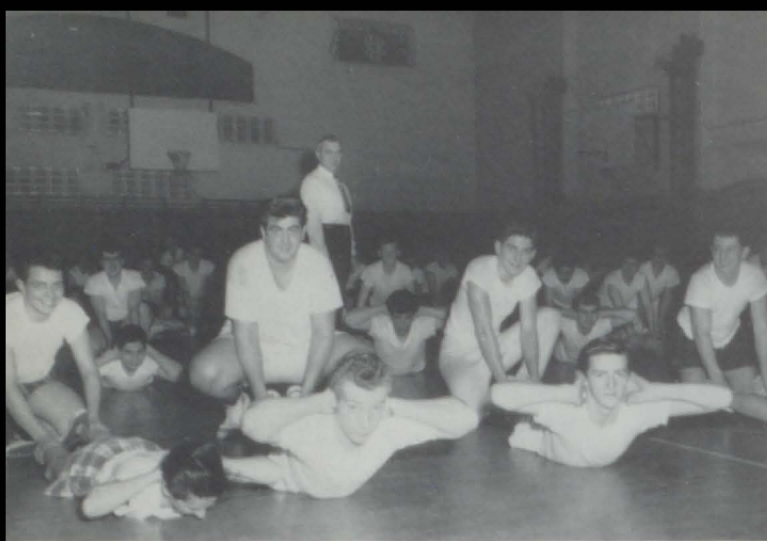

The language department consists of six teachers who teach four languages, including French, Italian, Latin and Spanish. It seeks to acquaint the pupil not only with the language, but also the customs and traditions of the various countries. It adds to the cultural background and general knowledge of the students through its instructional courses and various activities, as well as through its language activities program such as foreign language broadcasts, clubs, T. V. programs, foreign exchange students, films and many other activities.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

physical education

The program of the Physical Education Department at Barringer High School is based chiefly upon one idea; that each student should develop himself physically while learning to grow in sportsmanship and character through competitive and cooperative sports and athletic activities.

Gym classes for the girls includes folk, square and modern dancing to develop body poise and coordination as well as calisthenics, soft ball, and badminton.

Soccer, weight lifting, military drill, body building exercises, rope and ring work, volleyball and basketball make up the major part of the boys' gym program.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

music department

The music teachers here at Barringer strive to teach the students to appreciate good music. This is done by listening, singing, composing or actually, playing a musical instrument. Keeping up to date with the world of music is a requisite for the student.

There are many choral groups open to all students; the orchestra which is very active in all school activities, and the Blue Jackets also afford many opportunities to everyone. There are also instrumental classes where the student receives two lessons a week on any chosen instrument free of charge.

CLASS OFFICERS DISCUSS PROBLEMS OF THE NEW NEWARK WITH MAYOR LEO P. CARLIN

mayor's message to seniors

Permit me to extend heartiest congratulations to the members of the Class of 1958 and to express warmest wishes for every success on the path that lies ahead.

Participation in the communal activities of the city in which one lives, civic-wise, culturally and in all other avenues of endeavor, is a definite responsibility of citizenship; and youth's future in the "New Newark" will depend in the greatest measure upon the extent to which that responsibility has been discharged.

Our City is now passing through a period of revitalization, leading to much wider horizons, and our youth has a very definite stake in that undertaking.

We depend upon our young men and women to do their share in helping to bring this program for a "New Newark" to fruition and fulfillment. Their cooperation will not only help to carry forward the program of a new and greater Newark but it will also help provide for our youth a better and happier community life.

Go forward and the best of luck.

ODE TO THE SENIOR STAFF

The Lord above gave man an arm of iron,
So, he could do his job and never shirk.
The Lord above gave man an arm of iron,
But, with a little bit of luck, with a little bit of luck,
Someone else will do the blinking work!
With a little bit of luck, with a little bit of luck,
You'll never do the work!

MARVIN SHLOFMITZ

The cooperation, the cheerfulness with which you accepted this work, the many hours you devoted to it and the splendid spirit which prevailed all through this tremendous task is a revelation of your wonderful generosity.

You have worked with no thought of reward and no expectation of praise. Your reward has been the satisfaction of knowing that you have done something helpful and worthwhile for our class. We are truly grateful and want to acknowledge our thanks and praise to you . . . Mr. Shlofmitz.

Congratulations

To The Class of "58"

ALLEN PRICE, President

JEAN A. PRICE, Secretary

With the dawn of the commercial jet age, the need for well-trained personnel for America's airlines becomes increasingly urgent.

Travel by air is due to become so much faster—so much easier—most everyone will fly. Competition in the airline industry will force all carriers to provide the ultimate in service.

To help meet these jet-age demands we must all "look toward tomorrow" today.

as hostesses, ticket, station, reservation or communication agents, traffic and sales representatives

- Enjoy security
- Higher Pay
- Free travel passes
- Meet world famous people
- Retirement and Insurance advantages
- Exceptional advancement opportunities

Our courses are designed to prepare YOU in a short time—for an exciting glamorous and successful career in a growing industry needing thousands of trained personnel.

For further information write to above address (please give name of yearbook)

To My Godchild

MILDRED MANFRO

Ode to the Little Flower (St. Theresa)

God might have shared his sunsets more sparingly.

And he might have doled out his blossoms more grudgingly.

And he might have put just one little star in all of the sky.

But since he gave so lavishly, why shouldn't I.
